

Have you got what it takes?

This is your opportunity to join one of the world's biggest farmer owned cooperatives, redefining the potential and the future of dairying on a global stage.

Sound bold? Well it is, and you should be too if you're going to join the World Wide Sires' New Zealand team.

Our difference is our strength and our point of difference. Every day, on farms all around New Zealand, we are working with farmers to decrease their environmental footprint while increasing their production and profit.

Right now we're needing a part time Breeding Consultants to be the face of World Wide Sires in the Whangarei, Okaihau & Kaitaia area, eastern Bay of Plenty, West Coast, South Canterbury & North Otago regions

It's a role with a difference – if you've got what it takes, you can structure the hours to suit your family and lifestyle.

It's an exciting position which will call on your

- proven success as a sales professional
- affinity with dairy farming and appreciation of the importance genetics plays to its profitability
- ability to motivate yourself to manage your own territory and meet/exceed sales targets
- freedom to travel, both within New Zealand and to our global headquarters office in the United States.

Needless to say, you'll be a great communicator and have business acumen and negotiation skills in abundance. And you will enjoy the mantle and challenge which comes from working with an organisation which is challenging the big players by being different – in the support, training and fun we have as a team, the service we provide to our clients, and, overall, the extraordinary quality of our dairy genetics.

Be part of the future of dairying and experience the difference that is World Wide Sires.
